The troops were all embark'd on board;
The ships were under weigh;
And loving wives, and maids ador'd,
Were weeping round the Bay.

They parted from their dearest friends,
From all their heart desires;
And ROSABELL to Heav'n commends
The Man her soul admires!

For him, she fled from soft repose,
Renounc'd a Parent's care:
He sails to crush his Country's foes—
She wanders in despair!

A Seraph, in an Infant's frame,
Reclin'd upon her arm;
And Sorrow, in the comely Dame,
Now heighten'd every charm:

She thought, if Fortune had but smil'd—
She thought upon her Dear;
But when she look'd upon his child,
O! then ran many a tear!

"Ah! who will watch thee as thou sleep'st?
"Who'll sing a lullaby,
"Or rock thy cradle, when thou weep'st,
"If I should chance to die?"

On board the ship resign'd to fate,
Yet planning joys to come,
Her love, in silent sorrow, sat
Upon a broken drum:

He saw her, lonely, on the beach;
He saw her on the strand,
And far, far as the eye can reach,
He saw her wave her hand!

"O ROSABELL—from thee to go

"Will comfort ROSABELL."

THE EMPEROR AT THE PLOUGH.

[From "Travels of a Philosopher," by M.
le Poivre.]

On the fifteenth day of the first moon, in every year, which generally corresponds to the beginning of March, the emperor (of China) in person performs the ceremony of opening the grounds. This prince in great pomp, proceeds to the field appointed for the ceremony: the princes of the imperial family, the presidents of the five great tribunals, and an infinite number of mandarins accompany him. Two sides of the field are occupied by the emperor's officers and guards; the third is allotted for all the laborers of the province, who repair thither to behold their art honored and practised by the head of their empire; the fourth is reserved for the mandarins.

The emperor enters the field alone, prostrates himself, and nine times strikes his forehead against the ground in adoration of Heaven, the God of Heaven; he pronounces, with a loud voice a prayer appointed by the tribunal of rites, invoking the blessing of the Almighty Sovereign on his labor, and on the labor of his people, who form his family—he then, in quality of sovereign pontiff of the empire, sacrifices a bullock, which he offers up to Heaven, as the source of every blessing: whilst they cut the victim in pieces, and place them on the altar, they bring to the emperor a plough, in which are yoked a pair of bullocks, magnificently adorned. The emperor then, laying aside his royal robes, takes hold of the handle of the plough, and turns up several furrows the whole length of the field; then, with a complaisant air, having delivered the plough to the mandarins, they successively follow his example, emulating one another in performing this honorable labor with the greatest dexterity. The ceremony concludes with the distribution of money, and pieces of stuff, among the laborers there present; the most active of whom finish the remaining labor, in presence of the emperor with great dexterity and address.

Some time after, when they have efficiently labored and manured their grounds, the emperor repairs again, in procession, and begins the sowing of the field, ways accompanied with ceremony, and attended by the laborers of the province.

The same ceremonies are performed, on the same days, in all the provinces of the empire, by the viceroys, assisted by the magistrates of their departments, in presence of a great number of the laborers of their respective provinces. I have seen this opening of the grounds at Canton and never remember to have beheld any of the ceremonies invented by men, with half the pleasure and satisfaction with which I observed this.

FROM THE BRATTLEBRO' REPORTER.

Embargo, Non-intercourse, and Policy of the Belligerents.

NO. IV.

In our last number we began a quotation from the Edinburgh Review of the French "Code de la Conscription," for the purpose of showing our French Americans what sort of liberty they have to anticipate from their friend Bonaparte, and what is and for a number of years has been the policy of the principal belligerent. We here continue an extract from the Edinburgh Review of the Code de la Conscription.

The conscription was first published in the form of a general law by the council of ancients in the year 1798, and has since undergone some slight modifications. The directorial plan is attributed to Carnot, who in the revolutionary language, is said "to have organized victory in the French armies." Its author, who was enthusiastically devoted to the forms of antiquity, and still preserves, within the rays of the imperial purple, all the simplicity of ancient manners, found his model in the constitution of the Roman republic, which made every citizen a soldier before the age of 46—in their annual levies, which admitted of no exception—and in the peremptory orders issued by their consuls to the magistrates of Italy, specifying the number of troops required, and the place of assembly.

By the law of the directory, all Frenchmen are pronounced soldiers, and when the country is declared in danger, are liable to be summoned to its defence. In any other conjuncture, the wants of the army are relieved by the conscription, and the requisite number of conscripts is determined by the Senate or legislative body, at the suggestion of the executive government. The law which limits the whole number, regulates, at the same time, the contingent of each department, proportionably to its population. Within eight days after publication, the prefect distributes this contingent among the districts, by the same rule, and the sub-prefect among the cantons and municipalities. All Frenchmen between the full age of twenty and twenty five complete, are liable to the conscription. They are each year thrown into five classes; the first of which consists of those who have completed their twentieth year on the 1st Vendemiaire, or 16th September preceding; the second of those who at the same period, have terminated their twenty first year, and so on, in the order of seniority. Thus the conscript, who has attained the full age of twenty-five, remains liable, until the day and month just mentioned. The municipal administrations are bound to prepare lists framed from the registers of births, and from common notoriety, which particularize the name, domicile, stature, &c. of all the individual subjects to the conscription, within their jurisdiction. The same individuals are also bound to enrol themselves, with a similar specification, at the office of the municipality, as soon as the law is published. Both lists are then transmitted to the prefects, who are responsible for their accuracy, and who immediately consign them over to the minister of war.

Eight days are allotted to the preparation of the lists. The conscripts are then assembled in each canton, and examined by the administration, or by special commission, created ad hoc by the prefect. The merits of all pleas of exemption are scrutinized at these meetings. Such as plead infirmities, if able to attend, are examined on the spot; and if not, are visited at their dwellings by "the inspectors" and health officers. The latter, generally physicians in the army, are not selected until the moment of examination; and to obviate collusion, must belong to a district different from that of the conscript. The final decision of all cases of exemption is referred to a commission of higher resort, composed of the prefect, the general officers, and commissaries of the department. When these claims are disposed of, lists are formed of those who are adjudged competent to serve, whether present or absent; and the sub-prefect then proceeds to the "drawing" or designation by lot, of such as are to constitute the quota of the district. Tickets regularly numbered to the amount of the names on the list, are deposited in an urn and indiscriminately drawn out by the conscripts or their friends. The lot falls upon those who draw the numbers below the amount of the quota. The higher numbers drawn by the rest are annexed to their names, in order that they may be forthcoming in their order, should any casualty disable their predecessors. Absentees not presenting themselves within a month after the drawing, are declared refractory, proclaimed through the empire and pursued as deserters.

NOTE.

* Two brigades of Gendarmerie usually attend. This is a body of military, having the same functions as our constables, and about 16,000 in number. [Fauchet.

These are the conscripts of "the active service." But besides these, the law requires an equal number, what is termed in contradistinction, the conscription "of the reserve." The members of the reserve are nominated with the same formalities, to march only in case of emergency; are regularly organized, and carefully disciplined within their own department, from which they are not suffered to absent themselves. A third body is then created, of supplemental conscripts, equal in number to one fourth of the whole contingent, and destined to fill up the vacancies which may be occasioned before junction at head quarters, by death, desertion, or other causes. If the supplement should not be adequate to this purpose, the reserve supplies its place; and at all events no deficiency is permitted, as each canton is accountable for its full assessment. No Frenchman under the age of thirty can travel through the empire, or hold any situation under government, or serve in any public office, unless he can produce a certificate, duly authenticated, attesting that he has discharged his liability to the conscription.

All the authorities are bound in solitaire and under the severest sanctions, to observe that the conscripts are assembled reviewed and dismissed to their destination without delay. They are marched under an escort of gendarmerie, and in bodies strictly limited to the number of one hundred, to various quarters or depots throughout the empire, and there first supplied with arms and clothing. They are never permitted to exist in separate battalions, but are individually (nominativement) draughted into, or scattered through, distinct corps of the pre-existing army, to which they are marched in exceedingly small detachments, and sometimes from an astonishing distance.

* Dispensations are given by the higher military tribunal of the prefect, and are provisional or definitive according to the nature of the disability pleaded. For all diseases pronounced curable, the discharge is but temporary. The infirmities which attend to disqualify, are discriminated with the nicest care, and accompanied by copious scientific explanations. The minister of war reviews the decisions of this tribunal; and if a suspicion of partiality arise, orders the medical inquiry to be renewed. The party released pays an indemnity to the government, the amount of which is proportioned, by the prefect, to his taxes, or those of his parents. No exceptions were originally allowed to the law "of active service," but at this moment, the eldest brother of an orphan family, the only son of a widow, or of a laborer above the age of seventy, or

NOTE.

* We find on the subject of dispensations, two decrees which should be noted. On page 100, of the year ninety-nine, by which all workmen engaged in the manufacture of arms and gunpowder, or employed in the national magazines of saltpetre, &c. are exempted; and another, page 104, of the year 1802, enacting, that congees equal in number to one fourth of the whole body of soldiers and subalterns in the army, should be given to such as had served irreproachably during the whole war, or during five campaigns as soon as they could be replaced by new recruits. The inspector charged with the distribution of these congees, is enjoined, however, to remind the soldiers how much they are in the wrong to abandon the first of professions (le premier des etats). In the year '98, the law was repealed which exempted married persons from the conscription. Depene, and with him Malthus, attributes the increased proportion of births in the country, anterior to that period, to premature marriages, to avoid the military levies (Malthus, b. 2. c. 6.) Premature marriages are particularly noticed in the statistical reports of the prefects for the year eight.

one who has a brother in the active service may, on soliciting the indulgence, be transferred to the reserve. The same privilege is accorded to those who have taken the order of sub-deacon in the ecclesiastical seminaries. Parents continue responsible for their absent children, until they can procure an official attestation of their death.

From the Rhode-Island American.

Public newspapers are, as the National Intelligencer well observes, (and it gives us singular pleasure whenever we can find in that paper sentiments worthy of transcription) the guardians of the public morals, and in some sort the formers of the destinies of nations. When they are considered in this point of view, it becomes the duty of every Federalist who is hearty in the cause, to lend his encouragement and support. Our democratic papers are absolutely forced on the community. We all recollect when lieutenant Osborne had the good fortune to be incarcerated, or in humbler English, to visit the inside of a gaol, his sympathising democratic brethren resounded the alarm, and the consequence was a vast accumulation of subscribers. The lieutenant, in an unguarded moment, spoke the truth, and declared to a man who left his name with the printer, when he made the public assertion, that he remained in gaol solely to oblige his republican friends.—When such gaol artifices are resorted to, to give currency to the most unheard of libels against the character of WASHINGTON, to blacken and defame virtue, of which he was the prototype, it surely becomes the duty of honest men, by honest means, to support honest establishments. The community have been deceived, grossly deceived, almost to their ruin, and we hope to be credited in this assertion, that the same means are now employed. Jacobins never were friends of the people—they have solicited confidence for no other purpose under Heaven than to betray it, as their actions have abundantly proved. Nothing can prevent this widely disseminating evil unless good men show in a good cause the same ardor and alacrity as evil men do in a bad one. The press, under the patronage of reason and truth, becomes the first blessing of a community; but if the partisans of reason and truth are cold, falsehood obtains the ascendancy & pours her venom through that consecrated channel. It is important to the very existence of a free people, that truth should be widely disseminated.—When such unheard of attempts are made to blacken and defame patriots, of whom the world was not worthy; when lies are so frequently repeated in defiance of all detection and exposure; when motives, and those the purest, are misrepresented, are we to sit with quiet stupidity, fold our arms and believe that no injury is done? Heaven forbid! Look at the venal presses of Napoleon in this country. Mark how they extenuate, alleviate, apologize for, nay even approbate and defend the actions of their master. These are the men who charge the federalists with monarchy—these are the men who support the rights of the people! If this delusion spreads, if facts sufficient to stamp conviction on the minds of incredulity itself, do not open the eyes of our countrymen, they are gone—they are tired of the blessings which they now enjoy, and they will eventually be the only instance in ancient or modern times, where a nation voluntarily surrendered their freedom and independence without waiting to have them rifled from their hands.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18.

For the Alexandria Daily Gazette.

Say not unto thy neighbor, go, and come again, and to-morrow I will give, when thou hast it by thee.

PROVERBS, 3. 28.

THE author of the above sublime admonition was the son of Bathsheba, and the darling of his father, "tender and only beloved." He had blessings heaped upon him of every description, and in superlative abundance:—He was a most powerful and popular monarch: the spontaneous offerings of the numerous neighboring princes were the most convincing pledges of their esteem and support.

His court was the focus, in which centered all that was excellent & desirable; it was the temple of Minerva, the favorite seat of Apollo, and the car of Venus.

For his solution and pastime, the wise men of the east, and the hair-breadth critics, culled the richest theses from the field of literature; the orchestra of five hundred "sweet singers of Israel," and playing on all manner of instruments, awoke their soul-enlivening strains for him; to decorate his board, the king brought forth their fatlings in the valleys; for his golden goblets, the mountain-sides teemed with their racy products; the thousand beautiful virgins of Palestine administered with alacrity, their exquisite charms for his gratification; in short, he quaffed high the pleasures of life, in all their voluptuous changes.

If then, while basking in this extatic fruition, he could spy out, through the deceitful phalanx of fawning courtiers that surrounded him, that there were such things in the world as poverty and distress (for "flesh and blood revealed it not unto him," and could press the subject to the bad paymasters of his day, in the moving terms as above; it is, it must be, an irrefragable proof, that evading the honest claim of the indigent is not so light a matter as it is generally conceived; but that all these little grievances shall have a re-hearing, at the final COURT OF APPEALS!

The good king, in the verse preceding my quotation, draws the attention in still more emphatic language, if possible. "Withhold not good from them to whom it is due, when it is in the power of thine hand to do it!" As much as to say—when the poor laborer has let out his person to you, to perform with willingness and patience, as far as his strength permits, every drudgery that you please to heap upon him, even till the night star arises upon his labors, and then with humility approaches you for his hire; do not, my dear friends—do not send him away with the unsatisfying words—"Go, and come again, and to-morrow I will give," especially "if it is in the power of thine hand to do it." To-morrow!—it is a word of equivocal import; at least, a dreary, solemn season of darkness intervenes, in which you or your creditor may be called to the land of your fathers, and the claim never be satisfied!

I would willingly entertain the good opinion of you, to believe you do not weigh the disparity of consequences that may result from giving or withholding. Give him the shining reward of his toil, which to you is but a trifle, but to him it may be his life, or the life of his family;—it may fill his little ones with bread, and cause the heart of his fond partner to leap for joy.—Withhold from him, and you may send him away, sorrowing, to a tender, disappointed wife, and a wretched semi-circle of naked and hungry offspring!

The claim of the poor is always of small amount and easily satisfied; it is, too, brot forward with a diffidence and fearfulness of offending, which at least deserves our punctuality and complaisance.

"Just balances, just weights, a just ephah and a just hire, shall ye have." This command is merely mechanical, and is more applicable to us in reference to those in better life, and more independent circumstances; it is a standard, up to which our civil police takes care that we shall come; and coming, we have done all that is required, or would be required of us, among our peers; we have done justly; but I see little comeliness in lank, hard-strained justice, dealt out with a scrupulous hand; I rank it among the passive virtues, that will stand neuter in the catalogue of rewards. The dear son of Plutus may pass muster here, whose sordid soul has shrunk up, and retired far from the exercise of any liberal emotion, and in whose breasts the "milk of human kindness" never grew—he may do justly though he has forgot to love mercy.

Moses was a practical republican—he hated oppression, and never failed to avenge it, from the time he buried the dominating Egyptian, till the Lord buried him.—Moses knew that human nature was always the same; and that although the intolerable oppressions that his countrymen had suffered, were fresh in their memory, he foresaw that many of them would practise the same on each other, whenever opportunity offered! A very pathetic caution that he gave them to this effect, I cannot forbear quoting here "Thou shalt not oppress the hired servant, that is poor and needy—At his day, thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it; for he is poor, and setteth his heart upon it; lest he cry against thee unto the Lord, and it be sin unto thee."

To an equal, we give a "just ephah," and no more; to the needy and friendless the case assumes a different aspect, and is another case; then the standard of justice is given into our hands, to plant it where we please, and we—a party concerned—stand umpire! Oh! then let us bear in mind that he is our brother—travelling the same road with us, and if he trudges bare-foot, and gets wearied, torn and entangled, that not only courtesy but duty commands us to reach him the helping hand.

Have we a "goodly heritage"? Then let us be thankful that Providence has placed some of the good things of life where we are not sordid enough to live for ourselves alone. Let us not forget the abode of distress, nor turn away from the hungry—let us be MERCIFUL.

SECULAR PREACHER.

Extract of a letter from Rotterdam to a merchant in Boston.

"September 18, 1809.
"The great quantities of coffee and other articles, which are now imported by fraud, prevents the rise of the same. Within the space of a fortnight have thus been imported into East Friesland alone, upwards of 7000 bags of Coffee.

"According to the late accounts from Paris, it appears there is no more fear of a rupture between France and the U. States; but that the state of things will remain the same as heretofore.

"The Danish Government have prohibited the exportation of sugars from Holstein.

"The disposition of our government in regard to the admission of Americans, has again considerably changed of late: so that it seems they are now determined not to admit any American cargoes whatever, even if they should consist only of articles permitted before, such as tobacco, ashes, whale oil, bark and medicines.

"The resolutions of our government in regard to trade, are now so fluctuating, that no dependence can be placed upon the duration of commercial regulations for any length of time, and therefore it is very possible that if a vessel, with before permitted articles, should arrive, the admission of it might be obtained; but we repeat, that nothing can be said of it with certainty."

BY THE LAST MAIL.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 15.

By captain O'Connor, in 34 days from Lisbon, which port he left on the 9th October, we learn, that the British and Spanish armies, under sir Arthur Wellesley (lord Wellington) were at Badajos; and the French at Talavera. Advices had reached Lisbon, that marshal Soult, with his division was marching towards the north, destined for Oporto.

We further learn, that the combined British, Spanish and Portuguese armies were plentifully supplied with provisions; and that 7 or 8 British ships of the line, and a vast number of transports, were in the Tagus. Markets at Lisbon for American produce very dull.

BALTIMORE, November 16.

Latest from England.

By the ship Philip, captain Williams, 36 days from Cowes, arrived this morning, we have received London papers to October 7, and hasten to give the most important items.

It appears by the latest London paper we have seen, (Courier) that every exertion is making by the French to recruit their armies.

The emperor of Austria in adverting to the prolongation of the armistice in his general orders, says, "his assent to the measure is to be attributed not to feebleness, but to his affection for his subjects, and his anxiety to avert from them the calamities of war," and again assures his subjects that no peace shall be concluded, but an honorable one.

The expectation of renewed hostilities continues. While the French conscripts, men and boys, are called out, and five feet boys induced to volunteer, Austria is using an equal exertion. A levy en masse throughout the Austrian dominions is expected.

The British ministry does not appear to have been formed. The Courier, the ministerial paper under Mr. Canning, says, the plan of administration, tho' not extended and combined (as the opposition expresses it) will still go down. "After a reign of half a century in the most arduous times, our venerable sovereign will not be abandoned by his people."

PARIS, Sept. 28.

According to a circular from H. E. the minister director general of the conscription, the mayors are authorised to receive enrollments for the grenadier sharpshooters, ranger sharpshooters, and conscript grenadiers and conscript rangers of his majesty's guard. The young men who enlist in the grenadier sharpshooters and conscript grenadiers, must be five feet five inches; for the ranger sharpshooters, or conscript rangers, five feet two inches!

The mayors may admit to enlist—1st, you men from 18 to 30, who have not fallen under the conscription—2d, individuals from 30 to 40, who have already served.—Young men from 16 to 18, shall in like manner be permitted to serve, with consent of parents or guardian.

Notwithstanding these provisions, which evince that his majesty is desirous of facilitating to all his subjects the means of entering into his guards, he has decided that four young men from each department may be directly admitted by voluntary enrollment into his regiments of fusiliers. Two of them must be at least five feet 5 inches, and two of five feet 3 inches.

ANTWERP, Sept. 21.

Several movements have taken place among the troops. General Klein, commanding the cavalry, goes to Brussels.—The grand park moved off in direction of Mechlen. Several regiments are quartered at Merzen, on the road to Holland.

The army of Antwerp will be divided into three bodies. The Dutch troops on the right; left wing under the command of Senator Rampon; centre under Reille, one of the emperor's aid-de camps. Our garrison will be composed of 1000 dismounted dragoons, 1000 veterans & 1500 of the national guard. General Vattelex has arrived here.

Some Valuable Slaves,

Belonging to the estate of Edward Carter, deceased, will be offered at Public Auction, on WEDNESDAY, the 10th day of January next, at Hay-Market, in the county of Prince-William. They will be sold in families and for cash.

E. Brooke,

FOR SALE,
The following VALUABLE PROPERTY.
A TRACT OF LAND,
CONTAINING 1600 acres, more or less, called and known by the name of Buffalo Marsh, lying within 12 miles of Winchester, in the county of Frederick, in the state of Virginia. On about 900 acres of this tract there are several very well improved farms tenanted for life or lives, the balance free of all incumbrance, including an excellent merchant mill built with stone, the whole yielding an annual rent of about 800 dollars. Much of this tract is very fertile, well watered, and all abundance of timber. It is generally rolling, but part of it is hilly and stoney, chiefly of lime stone. It will be laid off to suit purchasers.

Another tract, called Hollis's Marsh, lying in the county of Westmoreland containing about 2800 acres, bordering on the river Potomac, adjoining the Stratford estate, and the late residence of Richard Lee, esq. of Chantilly. On the estate are a number of farms and tenants at will. Part of this land is extremely fertile, and all of it as good as the lands generally are in that part of the country. The Marsh affords excellent range for stock, and is happily situated for fish and fowls of which that river abounds, and must be a desirable estate to any person who may choose to reside in that part of the country. It will however be laid off to suit purchasers. The above lands are held by deeds of purchase duly recorded in the general court.

Another tract containing 992 acres, lying in the county of Berkeley, adjoining the residence of Raleigh Colston, esq. of which about 660 acres is leased for the balance of the life of an aged man, the rest tenanted at will. This land is situated in what is called the big bend of Potomac, and borders on it. In point of fertility it is esteemed inferior to none in that part of the state and is held by deed from James Marshall, esq.

Seven other tracts containing 1000 acres each, adjoining each other in the county of Mason, within a few miles of the Ohio, between the two Kanawhas on the waters of Sandy Creek, which runs through a considerable part of it. It adjoins the lands of general Washington, and the late Benjamin Harrison, jun. esq. A large portion of it is rich bottom and the upland of very good quality. It is held under the original patent by deeds duly recorded in the general court.

Five full & complete Shares in the Dismal Swamp Company.

Upwards of 16,000 acres of Lands, being very old military rights, lying in the states of Ohio, Kentucky and the Indiana territory, chiefly patented in my own name and ready to be shewn.

A more particular description of the foregoing property may be seen by applying to Mr. Thomas Taylor, of Richmond, who is authorized to make contracts, or to myself in Alexandria. The titles are all undoubted, and the terms proposed are, one fourth in cash at the time of conveyance, the balance in three instalments, the last two to be on interest from the date. Any species of the public stock and of the different Banks in the United States of Insurance Companies—of the Potomac Bridge and Turnpike Companies will be received in payment according to their fair value. Ground rents in the city of Richmond and town of Alexandria, or Houses and Lots, will likewise be received in payment according to such rates as may be agreed upon.

Two merchant mills are in the neighborhood, one on the adjoining estate, and the other within 2 miles. It is ten miles from Leesburg, 35 from Alexandria, and 40 from George Town, the new turnpike from Alexandria crosses a corner of the land and terminates at the nearest merchant mill.

The whole tract is remarkably well watered, Little River passing through the middle of it, and many small streams on each side emptying into that river: About 50 or 60 acres are already well set with Timothy, and at least 300 acres are capable of being made excellent meadow. It will be divided into tracts of different dimensions to suit the convenience of purchasers. A credit of one, two and 3 years will be allowed. Bonds with approved security, and a trust on the land will be required. The Negroes are supposed to be very valuable, some of them being good house servants, and the others principally young men and women—For them the same term of credit will be allowed, and that of a year for every other article.

With pleasure I do return my sincere thanks to the above named ladies, and many others who have favored me with their certificates and custom in the purchase of Yarwood's Patent Washing Machine. I find them still in great demand in this place, but finding a very great scarcity of plank to answer the purpose of making them here, I shall in a few days or weeks commence making them to the southward. But will endeavor to supply others at a short notice after my return. I have a few now made on hand, which can be had if applied for soon.

DIRECTIONS HOW TO USE

YARWOOD'S

Patent Washing Machine.

First fill the barrel half full of your finest cloths, then fill the bottom of the Reservoir with hot suds up to the side planks, turn the Crank backwards and forwards so as to make the cloths fall the farthest against the sides of the barrel for about twenty-five minutes, then use the same suds with a little more soap and hot water for the next finest cloths, until the suds are unfit for use, then second your cloths in the same way with boiling suds, after using a little soap on the dirtiest parts of the cloths; then rinse them in the machine with warm or cold water.
